The ethics of eating insects r/vegan - reddit The ethics of eating insects submitted 3 years ago by FdeZ mostly vegan So recently stores are starting to sell insects as food where I live, I am not knowledgeable about insects and their sentience(?) at all, so I'm just looking for both opinions and facts about the topic. Is it wrong to eat meat? On vegan ethics - netivist Vegan ethics: no eggs or diary products. The dilemma posed by vegans is this: if it is an evil act to keep humans against their will for their produce and ultimately flesh, then what makes some animals so different? The most intuitive response is perhaps that eating meat is simply custom in our society.

Breaking Vegetarian: The Ethical Implications of Eating ... For so long, I had assumed I was maintaining a diet that caused less suffering, but my vegetarianism had blinded me to the myriad other ethical dilemmas that were a part of my eating choices. I started wondering whether not eating animals was the only, or even the best, way to make such a compassionate choice.
